CAMINO WAYS

The Camino Way, the storied medieval pilgrimage route that still attracts thousands of walkers yearly, has become increasingly popular with Irish travellers looking for spiritual nourishment, actual nourishment (the restaurants you'll happen upon are some of the finest in Northern Spain), an activity holiday, or indeed all three. If you want to reward yourself for all that exertion, consider booking a Superior Collection trip with CaminoWays.

From Casas Rurales to country homes, farmhouses and Paradors, each stop-off is as far away from feet-smelling hostels as you can get. On your arrival to Santiago de Compostela, after completing your Camino trek, stay at the five-star Parador dos Reis Católicos, one of the oldest hotels in the world. From €673pps in low season and €749pps in high season.
